

speaker is not here on the floor at this moment. I think he will be here shortly. I would ask, does the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) have any other speakers?

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I am prepared to close.

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this rule.

9/11 Commission Chairman Thomas Kean is quoted today calling the bill the other body passed 96–2 a dream. If the other body's bill is a dream, I guess H.R. 10 is his nightmare.

There are many of us with grave concerns with the underlying bill, H.R. 10. Analysis of the bill shows it only implements 10 of the 41 recommendations, while tacking on an additional 50. In due time we will have a chance to debate this.

More importantly, the Rules Committee has also made in order a substitute amendment. While the name has changed, it is the same exact substance of the Shays/Maloney substitute. This will allow us the opportunity to have a fair debate. An opportunity to pass a clean bill with bipartisan support.

I will note that the Rules Committee did miss an opportunity to make this truly a bipartisan effort and I remind everyone that the American people do not want a partisan debate on their security. Both parties need to work together and pass this substitute.

This is what the 9/11 Commission and the 9/11 Family Steering Committee has been fighting for.

Over the last weeks they have been unwavering in their support for a fair debate and have fought for an up or down vote on clean legislation.

Today they have scored another improbable victory.

They were told by the House leadership—the same people that fought the creation and extension of the 9/11 commission—that the House would never have this opportunity. The families and commission refused to listen and once again fought for change.

They told us they want us to work in a bipartisan way.

I thank them for always keeping this House on task and I hope, with today's substitute, we can do just that.

By allowing a substitute, this House will have the opportunity to vote up or down legislation that takes provisions from both the Collins/Lieberman and the McCain/Lieberman bills.

This is the same legislation, H.R. 5223, Congressman SHAYS and I have introduced in the House and both have the support of our bipartisan 9/11 Commission Caucus.

This substitute takes Title One of the Collins/Lieberman Bill which creates a National Intelligence Director and a National Center for Counter Terrorism. For Titles two through nine, it uses the language of the McCain/Lieberman bill.

This combination would allow the House to debate a bill similar to the bill that passed the other body 96–2, a bill that enacts the provisions of the 9/11 Commission without any add-ons. This is a bill we could have on the President's desk before we leave town.

I ask Members to support this rule, but I urge them to support the substitute.

This is the option the 9/11 Families and the 9/11 Commission have fought for. It would be a shame if this House does not take this opportunity to work together and pass this substitute.

The American people want this Congress to work in a bipartisan way to enact the 9/11 Commission's recommendations. Today we will have that opportunity by supporting the substitute.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, then I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.
